Shaving the is part of nearly every woman's grooming regimen. Legs with smooth, silky-soft and closely shaven skin are considered sexy. But while modern technology has brought to us means to make our legs and other parts hair-free for a longer term, if not permanently, women still turn to the good old razor to do the job for them. It is most likely because shaving is still the fastest, the easiest and the most convenient way to keep free from unwanted hair. It is also the least expensive. But shaving the hair off needs to be done correctly, or else we will end up with dry skin that is unevenly shaven, sometimes with nicks and little cuts that are prone to infection, and sometimes with rashes. Areas that are shaven properly will have a nice and smooth feel that can last for several days.

So how should you shave your unwanted hair? Here is how:

- 1- Prepare the skin of area for shaving by applying Nu-Shave Pre-Shave Oil.
- 2- Apply Nu-Shave to the skin and lather with little water. Let stand for 2-3 minutes to penetrate the roots.
- 3- Shave with good blade use gentle strokes with minimum pressure along the grain (in the direction of the hair growth). Be careful in shaving areas with uneven skin, like the ankles and the knees, and also on scabs, if you have any.
- 4- Add more water and lather again (you do not need to apply Nu-Shave again since it will lather again without using more).
- 5- Shave again against or across the grain. If you are having trouble shaving some areas, make the hair s rise by pulling tightly at your skin.
- 6- When you are done shaving, rinse your skin off carefully to remove the residue of shaving cream as well as the bits of hair that were shaven off.
- 7- Pat your skin dry and apply Nu-Shave Balm moisturizer to keep your skin smooth.
